Hello everyone,
Delhigh has had a productive year. The SEO and all of our teachers have taught five ABC Courses this year with every student getting their boating certificates. We answered the Northampton Fire Department's request in July to teach the ABC Courses to several firefighters who are learning water rescue. We have been invited back to use the facilities to hold more classes, and we thank them for their generosity. We are working on next year's class schedule. The Vessel Safety Examiners did well examining boats and helping others understand the reasons for having the proper equipment on board. Now that the weather has gotten colder and our boats have been put away, we can prepare for the upcoming holidays. Thank you all for a great year of learning, playing and great times. I wish everyone a very happy and enjoyable holidays and look forward to our Holiday Party.
Thank you.

VSC Corner

By: Crd Keith Knoblach,

The hardest part of boating is having to put your boat up for the winter, but it's something that has to be done. Make yourself a list of what has to be done when preparing your boat for the winter. Delhigh's Vessel Safety Examiners did excellent getting the number of checks completed this year. Thank you to all the examiners. I hope everyone had a great season this year and are planning for next year.

Happy Holidays.

Executive Officer's Report

P/C Robert Rendish, P

The 2026 United States Power Squadron's annual meeting will be held February 8 - 15, 2026 at Embassy Suites Kingston in Myrtle Beach, SC.

If anyone is interested in attending our own D/5 member Ralph Bernard will be going out as Chief Commander.

Now that we are entering the winter months, and the end of the boating season for much of us, it's time to think about what we can do concerning our boats and advancing our boating knowledge.

Consider taking an advanced class from your Squadron if they are offering them. I have taken several of them over the years, and learned many things, and have become a more educated and safer boater. I have also made some new and longtime friends as well.

Consider online possibilities such as the USPS Education website, selecting a class of interest, or an instructional video of a new subject or a Repair / How To procedure.

Websites offering boating information such as chart plotting, cruising and maintenance, to name a few subjects would be informative and maybe enlightening.

Also, after winterizing your vessel, check to see if it may be necessary to replace your on-board equipment, from electronics to fenders. Update your on-hull registration and carry cards, insurance information, and your USPS certified State Boating ID card.

There are so many things you can do to be a better and safer boater and captain of your vessel. To the Breezes.

Administrative Officer's Report

The Fall weather has finally started to turn cold and our activities are moving indoors. Our Holiday Party is coming up and we will have a Pollyanna gift exchange and collect toys for Toys for Tots. The change this year is the time; we will meet at Pizza Como at noon and order food around 1pm. Please remember to RSVP to Bob.

Our January Meeting will be a Pot Luck at the Nowroozani house and chicken parm with spaghetti will be served. We hope to see you there.

We will be attending a Phantoms hockey game on Saturday, January 24th. This is always a fun event! Please RSVP to Kathy by December 24 and remember in invite your friends and family!

There will be an executive committee meeting in January, likely the weekend of the 17th. Details will be emailed to the ExCom members.

We hope you all have a wonderful holiday season filled with fun, family and friends!

Educational Officer's
Report
P/C Kathleen Nowroozani, SN

Our most recent ABC-3 class has been successfully completed by 4 students who have all passed. There are a few more students interested in taking the course and we will be having our next course February 21 and 28 back at Peter's Marine in Allentown.

As winter approaches and you find yourself with more time inside, don't forget that there are courses that can be taken at home on your own schedule. The number of seminars grows each year so that there is something for everyone.

With National ending Navigation and Junior Navigation at the end of next year, there are now alternate ways to get your SN grade. Alternately, there is an online offering of Navigation for anyone that is interested. It is being taught by Buzzards Bay; the contacts for that are Richard Moore and Dave Atwood. All JN's will be contacted via email. The other way to achieve your SN is to take 7 or more of the electives, including weather, which can be taken at the link that follows:

Weather Course

I would like to extend a huge THANK YOU to all of the instructors that give their time and experience at our classes. It is impressive to see the number of instructors willing to come out and help teach and I am very lucky to have each and every one of you!

Almost everyone knows how deadly hypothermia can be, but it's only one of the four stages of cold water immersion that can put your survival at risk. Let's look at each stage and learn the most important factor in cold water survival.

1. Cold shock

After falling into cold water, an involuntary gasp reflex causes the victim to take a deep breath. If the victim's face is in the water during cold shock, the chances of survival diminish. Within minutes, the victim would progress to the second stage.

2. Cold incapacitation or short-term swim failure

In this stage, a victim's manual dexterity, grip strength and movement speed drop by 60 to 80 percent. The arms and legs begin to feel like clubs.

3. Hypothermia

Hypothermia usually sets in after 30 to 60 minutes of immersion. When the body's core temperature drops below 86 degrees, the victim loses consciousness.

4. Post-rescue collapse

When rescuers arrive, the victim may experience mental relaxation and decreased stress hormone output, which could cause a drop in blood pressure and lead to fainting and drowning.

Preventing drowning by cold shock and swim failure is the main challenge after immersion in water colder than 60 degrees. These two stages affect everyone, including strong swimmers and the physically fit.

Victims who wear personal flotation devices remain upright, and their heads are positioned to prevent them from inhaling water during cold shock. If they experience swim failure, their life jackets will keep them upright until they can be rescued. Life jackets' ability to prevent drowning by shock and swim failure make them key to surviving a cold water immersion. So don't forget to put yours on before you shove off. –Gary Walkington

A BIT OF FUN

The Fable of Santa's Christmas Boat

On Christmas Eve, Santa had a new plan—he'd trade in his sleigh for a high-tech boat! After all, reindeer get a little tired after all those years, and the North Pole's icy waters were perfect for a new adventure.

With his red coat flapping in the chilly breeze, Santa stood proudly at the helm of his shiny new vessel, the Jolly Kraken—an oddly shaped ship with sails covered in twinkling lights. It was powered by a turbo-charged snowmobile engine and a magic compass that always pointed toward the best cookies.

"Ho ho ho!" Santa chuckled. "No more rooftop landings! I'm going nautical this year!"

As he sailed through the skies, he spotted his first stop—a house on a hill. A family of good little boys and girls slept soundly, dreaming of gifts. Santa navigated carefully toward the chimney—but alas! The house was surrounded by trees!

"Ah, this is why I should've taken a sleigh!" he muttered, steering the boat left and right, narrowly avoiding branches.

But Santa wasn't discouraged. He pressed a button, and the boat's hull expanded like a blow-up raft. With a deep "whoosh," the boat squeezed itself down the chimney, leaving a trail of glitter behind.

Next stop: The Johnson family! As Santa attempted to deliver a scooter, the boat hit a rogue snow-drift, sending him flying through the front door.

"Oops," he said, dusting off his coat. "Should've thought this through better..."

Eventually, Santa delivered presents to every good boy and girl, even if it meant some very questionable boat maneuvers. By morning, he'd made his way to the last house, where he parked the boat with an impressive splash in their pond.

As he took a bite of the cookies left out for him (they were coconut, but hey, he was on a boat—he had to go with it), he smiled.

"Maybe next year, I'll just stick with the sleigh," he thought, chuckling.

"Or... at least upgrade to a yacht!"

And so, Santa learned a valuable lesson that night: Even the best-laid plans can turn into a full-on boat disaster. But hey, as long as the cookies are good, it's all worth it!
